Mobility 2.0: The Extraordinary Motion of Architects, Materials, and Objects

Mark Wigley, Dean
Graduate School of Architecture, Planning and Preservation
Columbia University

The world is urbanizing at such an unprecedented speed and scale that the form of the city has become the single biggest experiment in human history. Many of our traditional concepts are completely inadequate in the face of this radical global experiment. Our most basic sense of the physical environment and what it means to move within it has to be rethought. This set of three lectures will look at the unique mobility of architects then materials then objects for some clues as to where things are going.

February 6, 7 & 8, 2012 at 4:30 p.m., Room 140, University College
15 King’s College Circle, University of Toronto
Reception in Room 240 following lecture on February 6

February 6: Utzon’s Wings: The Mythology of the Global Architect

February 7: The Plastic Line

February 8: Experiments in Motion

Members of the faculty, staff, students and the public are cordially invited.
No registration necessary. Call (416) 978-7416 for more information.

About the Teetzel Lectures:
The Teetzel Lectureship was established through the generosity of Mrs. Rita K. Teetzel, who graduated from University College in 1912. Mrs. Teetzel requested that a portion of her estate be used “for the furtherance of studies in Architecture for women in University College.” The lectures bring distinguished scholars in art and architecture to the College.
