   • Motions voted upon by using ‘yes’ and ‘no’ buttons, with ‘go slower’ as abstention
   • Chat comments monitored by the Secretary

2. Motion to approve minutes of the meeting held on January 29, 2021

   Motion called by Ryan Woolfrey
   Motion seconded by Siobhan O’Flynn
   Motion approved unanimously

3. REPORTS
   I. Update from the Registrar, Ryan Woolfrey
      Staffing Updates
      • Claire Skinner, Financial Aid & Awards Advisor, starting parental leave on March 15 – today is her last day in office until return in Sept. 2022
      • Kathleen Martin has recently joined our office on an 18-month contract covering duration of Claire’s leave
        ▪ Kathleen comes to us from Faculty Registrar’s Office in Arts & Science, where she oversees departmental, faculty, and decanal research award administration • Accessibility Services adding new part-time On Location Accessibility Advisor to help address needs of UC students – Michael Mercer joined sUCcess Commons team at UC earlier this month

      National Scholars Reception – March 1
      • National Scholarship Finalist event was slightly different this year
        ▪ Instead of usual reception in Bissell House, a virtual drop-in session was held on March 1
      • One National Scholarship finalist has chosen UC as their college this year
      • Our finalist had a chance to connect one-on-one with one of our current National Scholars in this virtual session

      Program Enrolment
      • Academic Advising & Registrar’s Office (AARO) ran several group advising sessions and informational workshops for first year students about choosing and enrolling in programs of study
        ▪ Facilitated by an academic advisor and hosted virtually on MS Teams ▪ Additional program enrolment programming was provided by our office to first year students in Morrison Residence and to students in University College First Year Learning Community
      • Program Exploration Days in Arts & Science took place on Feb. 23, 24, and 25
      • AARO participated in Discover Your Program session on Discord hosted by the Office of the Dean of Students on evening of Feb. 25
Summer Course Enrolment
- Summer enrolment began on March 1, as did first round of program enrolment
- Nearly all courses will be offered online this summer, with exception of a handful of small laboratory and practical courses that cannot be run online

End of Term Advising
- As end of term approaches, team in AARO is preparing for a significant increase in demand for one-on-one support and advising similar to Dec. and Jan. time period
- Administrative deadlines, including deadlines for late withdrawal without academic penalty and Credit/No Credit, have been extended by Arts & Science (A&S) to May 7 to allow students to view their final grades before making these end of term decisions

Fall 2021 Admissions
- Completed third of six rounds in 2021 admissions cycle
- As of today, have admitted approximately 75% of new student population, with majority of remaining students to be admitted next week
- Projected to admit 1,154 students: about 65% domestic, 35% international – approximately 18.5% of total A&S population

Scholarships Update
- Admission scholarship offers have gone out to newly admitted students for first three admission rounds
  - Have already made over 228 scholarship offers to students, totaling $300,000, with more offers to come in remaining admission rounds
- Applications for 2021 Leadership Awards closed on UC website at end of Feb.
  - Scholarship Committee will be meeting next week to adjudicate applications and make award decisions
- Graduating Year Award applications have opened on UC website, and will soon be advertised to June graduands and Nov. 2020 graduates, and are due on May 1
  - Scholarship Committee will be meeting during month of May to select recipients for Graduating Year Awards

For approval: Three new awards, descriptions of which were circulated with College Council agenda (Appendix 1):

MOTION: Be it resolved that University College Council approve the following new scholarships that have been reviewed and approved by the UC Scholarship Committee:
- Mary Elson Scholarship
- Bing and Jane Lee Leadership Award at University College
- University College Award in Asian Art History

Moved by Ryan Woolfrey
Seconded by Michael Cobb
Motion approved unanimously

II. Update from the Principal, Markus Stock
(Presentation attached – Appendix 2)

COVID-19 Updates
- Acknowledge the one-year anniversary of the COVID-19 pandemic declaration
Thank you to students, staff, and faculty for hard work throughout year

Fall Planning 2021

- Recent updates in letter from U of T President and notes from Provost regarding planning for Fall 2021
- Hope and optimism that most courses, student services, and co-curricular activities will be in-person Fall 2021
- Many details being discussed
  - Large classes
  - Large events/gatherings
  - International students’ ability to attend in-person
    - Depending on vaccine rollouts
    - Quarantine parameters
    - Student Visas etc.
- Close consultation among Deans of Students and Vice-Provost Students’ office regarding residence and room occupancy protections
  - Especially regarding residences with shared washrooms
- Looking at possible third wave in April with new COVID-19 variants

Budget

- University is in positive financial shape overall despite uncertainties surrounding COVID-19 pandemic
  - Resources continue to be directed towards addressing ongoing challenges as a result of COVID-19 pandemic
- Enrolment remains robust
  - Undergraduate cohort larger than years before
  - Largest international cohort ever
  - Testament to what Colleges have been working on to avoid summer melt
  - Enrolment-related revenues will likely have increased
- Total operating budget for U of T is $3.12B
  - 4.4% higher than previous year
  - Largest revenue source is tuition and fees
  - Largest expenditure group is faculty and staff compensation
- Balance of funding between tuition and provincial operating grants continues to shift
  - 21% of operating budget coming from provincial government
    - Down from 22% previous year
  - Trend of increasing international tuition revenue
- Ancillary services suffering significant adverse budgetary consequences
  - Felt at college level due to reduced number of students on campus
  - Will likely require deficit spending over next several years
- Student aid expenditures increased slightly
  - Commitment to providing financial aid to students from University
  - Significantly higher than what is required by Ontario’s student access guarantees
  - Significantly higher, 58%, than what peers in Ontario are offering students
  - Student aid budget for 2021-22 will increase to $291M
- Direct entry undergraduate divisions (i.e. A&S) have committed to significant investment in merit-based scholarships for international students
  - Parts of the revenue generated by international students to be paid out to international student scholarship funding
- Student experience remains a budget priority
- Expanded mental health services
- Increased opportunities for experiential and work-integrated learning
- Research experiences for undergraduate students
- Physical and IT infrastructure
- Improving service delivery in areas of academic advising and student success
  - Most pertinent to College

UC Quad Renovations
- Renovations made possible through major gift by Ed and Frances Clark
  - Gift was recently increased by donors, we are very grateful
- Renovation plans
  - To improve accessibility of Quad, including ramp
  - Needed repairs to walls
  - General update for electrical and A/V outlets
  - New seating on north side of Quad
  - Aim is to retain character of Quad
- Some trees close to wall will have to be taken out; removal approved by City, trees are not doing well
  - New trees will be planted
- To be renamed Clark Quadrangle
- Renovations to start in April 2021
  - Hoping that major construction is completed by Sept. 2021
  - Work will continue until late fall/early winter

UC Campaign Priorities
(Document attached – see Appendix 3)
- Designed to help formulate UC’s campaign priorities and objectives
- Priorities, themes, and initiatives will evolve over course of campaign
- Discussed values, alignment with institutional themes
- How UC fits into bigger picture
  - Identifying synergies within A&S themes and U of T priorities
- Should inspire student, faculty, staff, and alumni
- Consulted with many groups virtually
  - UC Lit Core Executive
  - UC Program Directors
  - Senior Management Team
  - Principal’s Advisory Committee
  - Faculty members through Senior Common Room
  - UC Executive Committee
  - UC Sustainability Committee
  - Student Focus Group
  - Art Museum at the University of Toronto (AMUT), Centre for Sexual Diversity Studies (SDS)
    - Ongoing conversations between AMUT and SDS
    - Develop own priorities, but collaborate often
- UC Priorities Document Themes
  - Supporting Academic Success and a Caring Community
  - Equity, Diversity, & Inclusivity
  - Indigenous Education
  - Sustainability & Climate Change
• UC Priorities
  ▪ Student Support
    - Scholarships and Awards
    - UC Student Experience Initiative
  ▪ Programs
    - Support for academic programs, such as Chair in Black Canadian Studies, Chair in Food Systems and Health Studies
  ▪ Enhancing College Spaces
    - In alignment with themes and initiatives
• For any further questions or comments about the UC Priorities document, please email Melissa Szopa at uc.principal@utoronto.ca

Question:
Regarding fall planning, are there any conversations on the last possible date to notify students and faculty to what extent we can expect an in-person Fall 2021 semester?

Response:
The University has committed to an in-person Fall 2021. The details are not yet finalized. For example, how larger courses will operate. Another major concern is if social distancing measures will still need to be in place. It is hard to tell at this time. There is optimism that an in-person experience will happen in the fall as per communication from the institution (i.e. letter from the President). However, there are many variables. There will be ongoing evaluation by the University.

III. Update from the President of the Lit, Liam Bryant

Updates
• UC Lit is hitting its stride regarding community engagement
• Half of new cohort for upcoming council has been hired
  ▪ Second half of council to be hired next week
  ▪ Completely new council on March 21
• Providing employment opportunities for students
  ▪ Part of larger strategy on behalf of UC Lit
  ▪ To engage better with UC students by providing employment opportunities
• Creating internal awards for volunteerism and leadership
  ▪ Robust and transparent awards and bursaries committee
• Equity and student support goals are centering around direct financial supports for students during COVID-19 pandemic and into the future
  ▪ Includes adding eight new positions on UC Lit council
  ▪ Increasing pay of positions
    - $500-$1000 depending on position
    - Expected time commitment for position
  ▪ Developed stricter ethics code for contracts
• Annual General Meeting in March
  ▪ Later than usual this year due to difficulties obtaining auditing documents
  ▪ Working on constitutional changes to create more accessible and transparent process for elections
  ▪ Changing positions for more equitable division of labour and more contemporary conception of labour
• Welcome to incoming UC Lit President, Juliana Melino
  ▪ Currently on UC College Council as student representative

Incoming President of the Lit, Juliana Melino
Looking forward to new role

Priorities as President of UC Lit
  ▪ Accountability of UC Lit
  ▪ Outreach to students, encouraging participation, especially during COVID-19 pandemic
  ▪ To get students excited and interested in what the UC Lit can offer to student experience

IV. Update from the Chief Administrative Officer, Yvonne MacNeil

COVID-19 Updates
  • COVID-19 protocols in Food Services and Residences continue
    ▪ New protocols with masking, goggles, and face shields
    - Implementing with staff working in food services and residence
  • Only staff working on-site are essential
    ▪ Staff who are not required to physically come to office are working remotely
    ▪ Faculty and staff reminded to use UCHECK self-assessment each time they enter building
    - https://www.utoronto.ca/utogether/uchek

Staffing Update
  • Cecille Sioulis, Program Coordinator at UC for the last eight years, will be moving to new position at Scarborough Campus
    ▪ Graciously agreed to continue to pick up emails until we have replacement

UC Revitalization Project
  • Revitalization project is complete
  • Working on signage
    ▪ Asking for as much lead time as possible to allow Advancement team to coordinate filming of donor signage installation
  • Some moves and cleaning to complete
    ▪ Currently limited staff allowed on site, delaying move

UC Quad Project
  • Met with construction company, Aldershot
  • Met with two principal on site supervisors
  • Will be sending out map shortly to show where hoarding will go up, how to enter and exit buildings, and where to send deliveries etc.
  • Project expected to run from April – Nov. 2021

Landmark Project
  • Sir Dan’s Quad renovation
  • Hoarding will go up shortly
  • Hope to have construction finished by end of June 2021

Financials
(Charts attached – Appendix 4)
• Total Budget 2021-22
   Total Funding – $4,431,416 (100%)
   Faculty of Arts & Science (FAS) Budget – $3,411,565 (77%)
   Other Funding Sources – $1,019,851 (23%)
• Total Other Funding 2021-22
   Total Other Funding – $1,019,851 (100%)
   Ancillary Overhead Recoveries – $431,658 (42%)
   UC Discretionary – $393,439 (39%)
   Program Spec Trusts – $163,300 (16%)
   U of T Depts Support – $31,454 (3%)
• Expenses 2021-22
   Total Expenses – $4,431,416 (100%)
   Admin Salaries – $1,814,200 (41%)
   Academic Salaries – $910,610 (21%)
   Sessional Lecturers – $304,789 (7%)
   Teaching Assistants – $87,030 (2%)
   Benefits – $615,398 (14%)
   Scholarship Funding – $120,000 (3%)
   Operating Expenses – $579,389 (13%)
• Academic salaries expenses have gone up, positive development
   New academic appointments brought on to UC programs
   Receive budget transfers for these positions
• Scholarship funding normally subsidized by One Time Only (OTO) transfer received from ancillaries each year
   Unable to budget this transfer this year
    - Due to COVID-19 pandemic, ancillaries have negative balance this year  Chose to keep Scholarship expense item at $120,000 for 2021-22
    - Hoping to make this by the end of the year
   Given numbers budgeted for expenses and discretionary funds, should be able to balance budget without reducing scholarship funding that would have otherwise come from ancillary subsidization
• Operating expenses is down about $80,000 from last year
   Due to everyone reducing budget where possible
• Year end, not in as bad as shape as anticipated
   Do not have to deplete as much discretionary funds as originally anticipated
• Ancillary services
   $1.2M deficit in food
   $3M deficit in residence
• Start budget process in fall for 2022-23
   Dependent on Fall 2021 semester and if there are many students on campus
• Close off for 2020-21 budget year almost complete
   Budget in better state than anticipated with COVID-19 pandemic

  - Created academic Chair in Chinese Canadian Studies
Fundraising track record
  - Pre-2011 UC raising $1M per year, on average
  - 2011 – end of Boundless campaign, raising $5M per year, on average
  - Highest fundraising year was $9M
Factors that contributed to success
  - Appeal of Capital project, UC Revitalization, iconic building
  - Tremendous alumni engagement
  - Passionate and committed leadership
  - Students support
  - Faculty support, pool of experts on impact of gifts on various programs

Question: Regarding Black Canadian Studies certificate; agreed that this is an important moment. Want to highlight one aspect of document (Appendix 5) – section 3, page 4. Note that it has been made clear that there is demand for a self-standing program in Black Studies at U of T. Is there any way that UC Council can form a committee, investigate, and establish a plan to look at forming a Black Studies program? There is concern that opportunities that will close. A program in Black Studies would promote important kinds of scholarship and promote hiring great scholars. It would contribute to interdisciplinary study. As noted in document, program looks at past and present, but also looks at roots – Black Canadian Studies certificate is a first step and wondering how to take second step.

Answer: Agreed, Black Canadian Studies Certificate is opportunity for building momentum to create Black Studies program. UC would be one area of support but would have to work with other programs; particularly African Studies, Caribbean Studies, and other units that would be interested. Will have to discuss best mechanisms for creating program. Building a program has larger budgetary and other implications that a certificate does not, which is why we started with certificate. Black Studies program is a bigger project that would require substantial buy-in from FAS. There is tri-campus interest in program and its capacities, particularly at graduate level. This is a longer-term project. Will connect to discuss how to leverage this moment.

Black Canadian Studies certificate still needs to complete FAS curriculum approval process. Hopeful that it will be approved. At that time, to use that opportunity to move discussions further.
Black Canadian Studies certificate underlines UC’s commitment of partnering in conversation with other parts of St. George campus and beyond. This is a significant moment, but also because it is a continuation of important programmatic conversation in institution.

If gather enough interest, intention of Chair in Black Canadian Studies would be to hire someone to take on a leadership role in Black Canadian Studies as per appointment, but also to developing Black Studies on campus and working with other units. That would be how we build towards a bigger project.

Members of UC Council expressed congratulations on Black Canadian Studies certificate. Members also express strong support in keeping momentum moving forward towards building Black Studies program.

4. Presentation on U of T’s Campaign Priorities

David Palmer
Vice President, Advancement, University of Toronto

- Naomi introduces David Palmer

David Palmer
(Presentation attached – Appendix 6)

- Bicentennial campaign planning and progress
  - Current campaign informal working title: ‘bicentennial campaign’
  - Timeline includes bicentennial anniversary of U of T
- Data gathered from group of public universities in US and Canada
  - U of T is part of group called Advancement Leadership Forum
    - Includes 8 American and 8 Canadian universities
- Share data to understand trends in giving and success factors
  - Average history of donor giving prior to first 7-figure gift
    - Typically give over 20-30 increasing gifts over course of 20 years
    - Direct correlation between engagement with the institution and giving behaviour
  - Motivations behind major gift donors
    - To create positive change at scale
    - Driven by missions that they are passionately involved in
    - Confidence in leadership, vision, track record, ability of institution
  - Motivations behind major gift donors to give again

• Average giving grows exponentially with number of engagement activities
• Public campaign launch currently planned for late Nov. or early Dec. 2021
• All fundraising done in service to approved academic priorities
• Campaign core narrative
  ▪ Research and teaching excellence
  ▪ U of T as caring community
  ▪ Accessibility as enduring value
  ▪ President’s three priorities
• Emerging cross-cutting University-wide themes (selection)
  ▪ Student mental health and wellness
  ▪ Accessibility
  ▪ Caring, supportive community
  ▪ Indigenous, Black faculty/student education and research initiatives
  ▪ Sustainability and climate change
  ▪ Equity, Diversity, Inclusivity
• Role of academic leadership in advancement
  ▪ Highest success in advancement when academic leaders put forward transformative agendas for change and innovation
• Partnership model of advancement
  ▪ Academic leads working in close collaboration with advancement teams is hallmark of most successful solicitations and advancement programs

Question: What can we take away into the next campaign to ensure it is successful, especially in the absence of having the opportunity to revitalize iconic and impactful spaces?

Answer: Building projects can often be a unilateral focus of fundraising. Once completed, these foci are often pivoted strongly to student involvement. Building projects come and go; but they are vitally important. Facilities that are created are gathering spaces and idea generation spaces. Spaces are fundamentally at the heart of student experience. However, student support is an evergreen need. Big ideas cultivate big philanthropy; these do not need to be capital projects.

5. Other Business

Budget Updates – Impacts of COVID-19

Impacts of COVID-19 on the University Budget

The university was able to deliver the vast majority of programs in alternate formats.

Fall 2020 incoming undergraduate class was 0.2% larger than in Fall 2019.

Fall 2020 international cohort was the largest in UofT’s history.

- emergency supports for students
- increased health and safety measures
- IT tools for online teaching and remote work

- significant reduction in travel costs
- occupancy savings due to lower on campus activity
- salary restraint agreements with employee groups

- online courses, tools, and teaching innovations
- IT platforms for the future of administrative work
- new opportunities for research and partnerships

IMPACTS OF COVID-19: ANCILLARY SERVICES

Ancillary Services are crucial to university life on campus for staff, students & faculty.

Decrease in on-campus activity led to reduced revenues for campus services.

Despite cost containment measures, financial losses were unavoidable.

Ancillary services are normally self-sustaining, but may need financial support until fully recovered.

UC Campaign Priorities – Consultations 2020/21

What we heard in the consultations…
The foundation of the College’s work and its fundamental priority is the support of academic excellence in all of our students. UC provides a supportive, smaller-scale environment for students to thrive intellectually and emotionally within the context of a large and research-intensive public university, and of an energetic and diverse metropolitan area. It is crucial to build a community for all of our students, including those who live on campus, those who are on campus for only hours at a time, and those who are mostly remote.
Equity, diversity, and inclusivity are UC’s core values. In all that we do, UC will help ensure our students develop an appreciation for how these values can inform approaches to complex societal issues. In particular, we can focus on celebrating and supporting the growing diversity of our student body.
UC Theme – Indigenous Education

UC should put increasing emphasis on the promotion of Indigenous education and cultures, both in the context of the TRC Calls to Action and our own values of diversity and inclusivity. We will partner with Indigenous colleagues and knowledge holders, to increase financial support opportunities for Indigenous students and augment curricula related to Indigenous histories, cultures, and ways of knowing.
With a renewed focus on sustainability and climate change, UC will align itself with yet another institutional priority. Making sustainability a campaign priority for UC will model behaviour and values for and in our students and demonstrate UC's commitment to doing our part to ensure that our planet remains habitable. We will seek to enhance sustainability-related scholarships, provide endowed funds for sustainability-related student projects, and work to make our spaces more environmentally friendly.

University College CAMPAIGN PRIORITIES

Second Draft Document (February 2021) for Discussion at UC College Council (12 March 2021)

This document on UC advancement priorities is designed to help formulate UC’s fundraising campaign priorities and objectives. It is the result of a number of consultations within UC (see appendix 1), from which it has considerably benefitted. The Division of University Advancement requires each division to submit such priorities document to inform the development of the overall University of Toronto campaign themes and case narratives. UC’s priorities will continue to evolve over the campaign. Accordingly, this is neither an exhaustive list nor is it meant to paint a full picture of the College’s academic priorities. The advancement priorities formulated in this document are aligned with UC values and respond to current needs and aspirations of the College, and inspire the whole UC community, including our alumni and donors. At the same time, these priorities also align with the Faculty of Arts and Science academic plan and with emerging U of T advancement themes (such as student experience, Indigenous education, or sustainability) as well as the President’s three priorities (re-inventing undergraduate education, strengthening international partnerships, and leveraging our urban location). Lastly, it should be noted that the dollar amounts accompanying the initiatives are very preliminary at this point and may change as much as any priority or initiative may change over time. After consultation in College Council, the plan will be presented to Governing Council for approval. But the process will not end there. Rather, we aim for a continuous conversation among UC students, staff, faculty, and alumni, as our collective vision for UC evolves. Please share your feedback with us at any time by sending an email to uc.principal@utoronto.ca.

Advancement Lead: Naomi Handley

Divisional Profile

University College fosters a uniquely personal student experience at one of the world’s foremost research institutions. Guided by our values of equity, diversity, and inclusion, students are treated as individuals and encouraged to be themselves in both their academic journeys and personal lives. Our campus culture has resulted in a strong and connected network of influential alumni, many of whom provide guidance and encouragement to current students through various means, including mentorship programs. University College truly strives to reflect and celebrate the diversity of our urban Toronto surroundings, and we are proud to have so many current and former students acting as agents of positive change in Canada and around the world.

Areas of Excellence and Differentiation

Established on principles of inclusion and diversity, University College (UC) was the University of Toronto’s founding non-denominational college. We believe that equity and access for all form the pillars of UC’s post-secondary experience, in which we strive to nurture our students’ academic and personal growth within a closely knit and supportive community. Home to more than 5,100 undergraduate students from a wide range of cultural backgrounds, our tradition of welcoming all students has made our architecturally iconic spaces lively incubators of discovery, debate, and diversity. This diversity also extends to our base of more than 40,000 alumni, many of whom have distinguished themselves within virtually every field of human endeavour and remain closely connected to their UC academic roots.

Located at the heart of the University of Toronto’s St. George Campus, UC offers students a uniquely intimate learning environment within Canada’s largest city and post-secondary institution. We also respectfully acknowledge that UC is located on the traditional territories of the Huron-Wendat, the Seneca, and the Mississaugas of the Credit River. We are grateful for the opportunity to work and live on this land and have made increasing efforts to reflect the Indigenous histories in our identity and academic offerings. As an example, we have made Indigenous education one of our main campaign priorities.

For faculty members associated with UC, the college provides an academic and intellectual community beyond their disciplinary appointments. UC is home to a number of specialized academic programs, such as the Mark S. Bonham Centre for Sexual Diversity Studies, and faculty members are actively encouraged to explore interdisciplinary themes within their courses. By encouraging diversity, inclusion, and interdisciplinary thinking, UC fosters a unique post-secondary environment that is simultaneously progressive and empowering.
II. STRATEGIC INSIGHTS

Strategic Drivers

UC’s main strategic driver for this campaign is innovating undergraduate education, which aligns with one of the University of Toronto’s strategic priorities. It will be critical to be relentlessly innovative in our efforts to establish UC as a place of belonging and caring for students. The context of remote learning during the COVID-19 pandemic has thrown this need into even higher relief. A wide variety of support services must be made available and easily accessible for students during their entire time at UC – from orientation all the way through their upper years and career planning stages. This is particularly relevant for our many off-campus/commuter students who often are not as closely connected to our physical campus and will be a focal group in our efforts to innovate the undergraduate student experience.

To attract and retain an excellent and diverse student body, we must also ensure that students from all backgrounds can access the economic and educational resources required to focus on their undergraduate studies. In an increasingly competitive post-secondary marketplace, enhancing access to financial assistance as well as our student support and advising can help set us apart – we must have a sound financial footing from which to continue UC’s history of inclusivity and innovation.

Challenges

UC has witnessed a dramatic increase in our student population over the past decade. While this is a positive development, it has been challenging to expand our resources at a corresponding rate. As a result, we sometimes struggle to meet student needs in areas such as advising and support services. Similarly, the significant increase of international students and the college’s active recruitment of a diverse student body means that we must quickly evolve to serve our complex student demographic more effectively. As an example, many of our student awards have a financial-need criterion and are not available to international students.

UC also faces the challenge of helping students navigate their many responsibilities in healthy and sustainable ways. In an increasingly competitive job market in which employers are looking for well-rounded individuals, many undergraduate UC students are actively preparing for graduate studies while involving themselves in extra-curricular activities and working jobs to make ends meet.

Likewise, the post-secondary market itself is increasingly competitive, and UC faces a challenge in distinguishing itself from other colleges in our efforts to attract and retain diverse and high-performing students. We must clearly define and communicate our objective to create an environment that is second to none when it comes to supporting and welcoming all students, regardless of their background, culture, sexual orientation, gender identity, or any other factors. This will particularly help UC distinguish itself from other colleges, both at the University of Toronto and elsewhere.
As the COVID-19 pandemic dramatically changed post-secondary learning environments, one of UC’s main challenges has been to maintain its closely knit and collegial atmosphere with most courses moving online and all other on-campus activities significantly reduced. This has been particularly challenging for our many students who live off campus and are physically isolated from their peers, support staff, and instructors. As such, the mental health of students, which has been a prime consideration for us long before the pandemic, has now become an even more pronounced focus, and we are continually brainstorming programs, services, and other interventions that will help students manage stress levels and succeed academically while building an affinity for UC. The best of these interventions will remain programmatic for us, even in a post-vaccine world.

Values
Academic excellence
Community
Caring
Equity, Diversity, Inclusivity

III. CAMPAIGN RATIONALE

UC has identified five main themes related to our overarching campaign priorities. For ease of reference, these themes will be outlined in the sections below.

Supporting Academic Success as the Foundation of Our Campaign Themes

The foundation of the College’s work and its fundamental priority is the support of academic excellence in all of our students. The themes and campaign priorities listed below are intimately related to this foundational premise. UC provides a supportive, smaller-scale environment for students to thrive intellectually and emotionally within the context of a large and research-intensive public university, and of an energetic and diverse metropolitan area. It is our conviction that by providing a smaller-scale community within these larger contexts, UC lays the foundation for our students’ academic success.

Supporting a Caring Community for Students

Our student population – both in size and in diversity – has changed dramatically over the last two decades, and it is critical that we focus on providing high-quality student services and supports to meet our students’ evolving needs. A first-rate, intimate, and personalized student experience remains central to the role of our College.

More than ever, students are in need of support to thrive in today’s post-secondary environments. The pandemic has only highlighted what we have been convinced of all along: It is crucial to build a community for all of our students, including those who live on campus, those who are on campus for only hours at a time, and those who are mostly remote. The COVID-19 pandemic, disrupting many traditional support avenues at UC, has also become an experiment in innovating community building. Programmatic innovation is especially needed for enhancing the undergraduate student experience of commuter/off-campus students who are not only physically disconnected from UC spaces at this time but have always been slightly less connected to the College. Now is the time to explore new ways to engage them.

From a student aid perspective, it is also critical for UC to increase the number of awards and scholarships that are equally accessible to students from all backgrounds and walks of life. Academic excellence manifests in a range of ways, and we plan to expand the number and scope of merit-based awards, bursaries, and scholarships to reflect our broadly talented student body. As our college grows, it is becoming increasingly diverse, and with the cost of post-secondary education continuing to rise, it is important for UC to provide equitable access to financial assistance opportunities.

Equity, Diversity, & Inclusion (EDI)

By embedding our values of equity, diversity, and inclusion in all that we do, UC will help ensure our students develop an appreciation for how these values should inform their own approaches to complex societal issues. In particular, we can focus on celebrating the growing diversity of our student body. By incorporating anti-racist and anti-colonial approaches into our advising, programming, teaching, and communications, we can establish our College as an academic community that puts its principles into practice every day.

Incorporating the values of equity and inclusion will also invariably lead to both personal academic achievements and the flourishing of students, as well as enhance UC’s institutional outcomes in graduating outstanding classes. Developing and cultivating further student programming and opportunities undergirded by the values of equity and inclusivity will also have the potential for UC to stand out in the global community of higher education, and possibly even catapulting UC’s reputation to the forefront of institutions pushing boundaries in EDI.

One specific way we hope to address this priority is by creating a Chair in Black Canadian Studies. With the Black Lives Matter movement sweeping the globe, we are living in the midst of an historic moment that has shone much-needed light on the inequities and persecution faced by Black individuals. Sadly, the many Black communities close to us in Toronto, Ontario, and across Canada have not been immune to this oppression, and these communities require recognition and space in academia to redress historic inequities. We envision a Chair in Black Canadian Studies demonstrating UC’s commitment to Black scholarship and attracting a wide range of high-performing students and faculty from diverse backgrounds.

Indigenous Education

We must also place an increasing emphasis on the promotion of Indigenous education and culture, both in the context of the Calls to Action formulated by Canada’s Truth and Reconciliation Commission, as well as our own institutional values of inclusion and diversity. To achieve this, UC will develop thoughtful and innovative means of both attracting and retaining Indigenous students, faculty, and staff. Partnering with Indigenous colleagues and knowledge holders, we will also work to increase financial support opportunities for Indigenous students and augment curricula related to Indigenous histories, cultures, and ways of knowing. Our approach to these must be thoughtful, collaborative, measured, and mindful that Canadian higher education itself has been born out of colonial structures and remains entangled in neo-colonial processes. Ultimately, our goal is to equip our students with a critical lens, support them in disrupting such neo-colonial entanglements and in becoming agents of positive change. This priority will require ongoing and transparent conversations.

Sustainability and Climate Change

With our renewed focus on sustainability and climate change, UC aligns itself with yet another institutional priority. Making sustainability a campaign priority for UC will model behaviour and values for and in our students and demonstrate UC’s commitment to doing our part to ensure that our planet remains habitable. We will seek to enhance sustainability-related scholarships, provide endowed funds for sustainability-related student projects, and work to make our spaces more environmentally friendly. Combined, this will serve as tangible proof that UC’s commitment to sustainability goes beyond mere lip service, and that we provide contemporary and innovative responses to long-standing issues. Such responsiveness to the ongoing climate crisis also interlinks with our focus on Indigenous education, whose epistemologies help us understand the relationship between people and environments in new and better ways.

In addition, UC will champion the concept of sustainability citizenship, which would further our objective to create a culture of inclusivity and caring for all members of our community. Sustainability citizenship supports behavioural changes - teaching students, staff, and faculty to be mindful of their impact on the environment and their own health. At its core, by promoting sustainability citizenship, we would be encouraging the UC community to understand synergies between physical health, economic equity, well-being, mental health, and environmental responsibility on both micro and macro scales. Balancing overall well-being of the self and the community, in turn, creates space for students to thrive and engage more fully with their academic careers.

In addition, we must evaluate the built environment the College is responsible for. Maximizing energy efficiency and reducing carbon emissions is important for UC to achieve active sustainability citizenship. UC will leverage historic preservation of buildings as an intrinsically sustainable choice; thus, retrofitting Whitney Hall with energy efficient upgrades will go hand in hand with revitalizing student community spaces and innovating student programming.
IV. CAMPAIGN PRIORITIES

Art Museum at University of Toronto

The Art Museum at the University of Toronto is a significant partner of UC. Art Museum spaces could be utilized effectively as a cultural hub for art and student experience. The relationships between the Art Museum, Bonham Centre for Sexual Diversity Studies (SDS), and Centre for Drama and Theatre Performance Studies (CDTPS) could be strengthened by partnering on art acquisitions and programs (exhibitions, workshops, performances) with artists, curators, and other creatives-in-residence that identify as BIPOC/LGBTQ2S+. Reimagining the Art Museum’s presence and wayfinding creates opportunities to enhance spaces where students gather and engage with the visual arts through an interdisciplinary lens. In addition, to further advance academic excellence and assist students’ future career trajectories, the Art Museum is interested in creating an apprenticeship program in the areas of curatorship, exhibition installation, and collections for students and recent graduates. The impacts of acquiring practical skills in these areas are highly impactful in students pursuing this avenue in the arts.

- Art Museum curatorial apprenticeship program
- Collaborations with SDS and CSTPS (creatives-in-residence program, art acquisition, visiting artists and curators) for wide-ranging programs, including performances, especially highlighting work relating to African diaspora and Indigenous work, etc.)
- Art Museum north-east entrance, performance spaces, lab and experiential learning spaces (naming opportunities)
Institutional Strategic Initiatives

The Queer and Trans Research Lab at the Bonham Centre for Sexual Diversity Studies

Proposal: The establishment of an interdisciplinary laboratory called The Queer and Trans Research Lab based at the Bonham Centre for Sexual Diversity Studies, University of Toronto. The purpose of this lab would be to conduct innovative research in the fields of sexual diversity and contribute to ongoing LGBTQ2S+ initiatives. It is our objective to help sustain the activists, artists, educators, and intellectuals involved in this work and to provide a space for them to meet, work, create, and organize. The Bonham Centre is well-positioned to lead this initiative as a result of its strengths as an interdisciplinary space with a full suite of educational programs and participating faculty from the Faculty of Information, The Faculty of Law, the Faculty of Social Work, as well as the departments of History, Anthropology, Women and Gender Studies, Political Science, English, Cinema Studies, Sociology, Psychology, and more.

Aims and Goals: The Queer and Trans Research Lab will be committed to:
1) Building on and expanding the already considerable strengths in interdisciplinary scholarship and pedagogy at SDS by giving structure and institutional space to meet, share scholarship and pedagogical practices, and organize events.
2) Attracting scholars, artists, and LGBTQ2S+ social justice leaders from across the country and around the world to conduct their work at the Bonham Centre and share it with our community.
3) Providing a space for scholars, students, artists, and social justice leaders to work collectively on their projects with the vital support needed to undertake them and building the necessary infrastructure for this work to successfully evolve and circulate globally.
4) Providing its members with the opportunity to study a complex issue in Sexual Diversity and to imagine new approaches or scholarship that will improve the lives of people in their, and our, communities.
5) Encouraging mutual learning between scholars, activists, artists, and students that creates new models of scholarship and engagement.

Description:
The Queer and Trans Research Lab, in its initial stages, will consist of 1) The Martha L.A. McCain Postdoctoral Fellow (already established at SDS); 2) an Artist-in-Residence (already in process with plans to unroll a pilot project in fall 2021); 3) an Activist-in-Residence; 4) multiple (paid) SDS undergraduate and graduate student interns: 5) A Faculty Fellow; 6) Key faculty collaborators at SDS.

- The Postdoctoral Fellowship supports scholars from any disciplinary field pursuing research in lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, two-spirit, and queer studies. Fellows teach one class for the Sexual Diversity Studies undergraduate program that highlights their work and, at some point during the period of their award, deliver at least one public lecture.

- The Artist Residency will provide financial, research, and other material support for artists working in any medium (photography, sculpture, media arts, theatre, writing, etc.), whose work centres on LGBTQ2S+ lives, communities, histories, and cultures and expressly concentrates on the role art plays in expanding how we think about and teach sexual diversity. The residency will culminate in an exhibition, reading, or performance of the resident’s work-in-progress.

- The Activist Residency will provide financial, research, and other material support to visionary LGBTQ2S+ activists and community leaders to establish creative links with students, teachers, and researchers in fields relevant to their work. This will aim to strengthen the relationship between theory and practice and deepen understandings within the university of the community relevance of their work. The residency will culminate in an event that showcases the Activist Resident’s reflections on future activist priorities.

- The Faculty Fellowship will provide a 12-month course release for a University of Toronto faculty member working on any aspect of sexual diversity studies at any rank, discipline, and campus. They will participate in all Queer and Trans Research Lab activities, have the much-needed opportunity to carry on their own research agenda, and collaborate with others in the Queer and Trans Research Lab cohort on the development of networked research, curricular, and pedagogical practices.

- The Student Internships will consist of 2-3 undergraduate and 2-3 graduate students in the SDS program. Interns will act as research assistants to the members of the lab and participate in the planning of all events of the Queer and Trans Research Lab, including an end-of-the year event imagined by the members of the lab. Each aspect of the internship will involve training in various skills acquisition, including research practices, social justice collaborations, large event organization, community outreach initiatives, and database development and management.

- In addition to conducting their own work, we expect members of the lab to be available to students for informal conversations through office hours, brown-bag lunches, and general presence on campus. Other activities the Queer and Trans Research Lab may undertake are as follows:
  - Interactive workshops
  - Reading/discussion groups
  - Classroom visits
  - Community meetings
  - Skills and training sessions for students

Benefits: We believe this collaboration will help strengthen the infrastructure of LGBTQ social transformation and human rights by providing researchers, educators, community leaders, artists, and activists with the time and space to do the difficult work of challenging our communities. Simultaneously, the engagement of Queer and Trans Research Lab members will develop and strengthen the Bonham Centre’s capabilities in and commitment towards LGBTQ2S+ education. The benefit to our students in their learning experience, the expansion of their networks, and hands-on research and skills acquisition will be immeasurable.
V. CAMPAIGN THEMES

UC’s themes predominantly align with these evolving institutional campaign themes at U of T:

• Caring, supportive community in which students thrive
• Equity, inclusivity, and accessibility
• Indigenous education and research
• Sustainability and climate change

1.2 UC Campaign Priorities Survey

- Filled out by:
  - Principal’s Advisory Committee
  - Senior Management Team

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE CAMPAIGN PRIORITIES SURVEY

The Principal’s Advisory Committee will act as powerful advocates and ambassadors for University College, as well as for the University and the broader campaign. They will be charged with helping to define and lead the campaign for University College, as part of the larger University campaign.

We’ve designed this survey to help formulate campaign priorities and objectives. Please fill out the form as best you can. Feel free to use bullet points. Please do not hesitate to contact Naomi Handley, UC Director of Advancement if you have any questions.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE NARRATIVE

1. Please describe why University College exists, what it does, who it serves, what value it brings.

2. Please list five values that define University College and its community.

3. What do you feel are the most pressing challenges facing University College?
   - Regarding current students
   - Regarding University College as an institution

CAMPAIGN THEMES
Through broad consultation, University College is exploring several potential organizing themes for its new campaign.

Among the University’s three priorities:

- Leveraging our location,
- Strengthening international partnerships, and
- Rethinking undergraduate education, the College’s programmatic emphasis is on innovation in undergraduate education and on the institution’s location.

Plus, several emerging themes specific to University College (examples included):

- Caring, supportive community in which students thrive
  - Example – expanded mentorship programs
  - Example – expanded spaces and programming for commuter students, both in-person and online
  - Example – Spaces and programming for co-curricular art engagement and collaborative creative activities for all UC students to help alleviate anxiety and promote wellness*
  - Example – Living/learning kitchen/community spaces in residences

- Equity, inclusivity and accessibility
  - Example - Scholarships for underrepresented communities
  - Example – Chair in Black Canadian Studies
  - Example – Dedicated residence space for Indigenous students

- Arts and Culture
  - Example - Contributing to student wellness through art engagement or collaborations, including the study and practice of Indigenous art*

- Indigenous education
  - Example – Hiring an Indigenous Curriculum Specialist to implement Indigenous content requirements and to incorporate Indigenous learning into all programs
  - Example – Create a designated Indigenous gathering space

- Sustainability
  - Example - Retrofit University College residence buildings (namely Sir Daniel Wilson and Whitney) to be more energy efficient
  - Example - Creating an endowed ‘Sustainability Fund’ for grants for student projects, proposals, and research relating to sustainability

- Public Health
  - Example – Chair in Food Security

* this example would require consultation and may include collaboration with the University of Toronto Art Museum and the UC Writing Centre
 this example would require consultation and collaboration with U of T First Nations House and other Indigenous expertise holders at U of T

1. Looking at these potential themes, please rank all the priorities as either A, B or C.
2. If applicable, please list any other major theme not captured above:

3. Please chose the top 2 emerging themes that you prioritized as A (Highest possible priority for University College) and provide a rationale for these priorities. Why now? How will it transform University College? What impact will it have on society? What global issues and challenges will it address?

Please feel free to use bullet points here. The text does not need to be polished; think of it as a thought-starter.

Appendix 5
University of Toronto Proposal to Create a Certificate in Conjunction With an Undergraduate Program

Certificates offered in conjunction with an undergraduate program are for-credit undergraduate certificates governed by the Policy for Certificates (For-Credit and Not-For-Credit).

Creation and closure of these certificates follow the protocols for minor modifications; are reviewed with the relevant undergraduate program; and are reported to the Provost through the Office of the Vice-Dean, Academic Programs. Successful completion of the certificate is recorded on the academic transcript. Students must be enrolled in a specific undergraduate program. Please consult with VPAP on the certificate’s name ahead of governance.

This template should be used to bring forward all proposals for new undergraduate, for-credit, certificates that will be offered in conjunction with an existing undergraduate degree program. The creation of the certificate follows a minor modification process and is reported to the VPAP office after approval.

1 Summary

- Please provide a brief summary of the certificate, including:
  - academic rationale for certificate
  - impetus for its development (including interest and demand)
  - how the certificate fits with unit/division’s academic plans
  - any important or distinctive elements

The Certificate in Black Canadian Studies will provide students with an opportunity to study and research the social construction of race in Canada, with a focus on Black Canada and Black Canadians, past and present. This will include attending to structural and systemic discrimination in areas including politics, judicial systems, and the arts, as well as to consider counter-narratives and forms of resistance and empowerment enacted by Black Canadian communities. This certificate also offers a specialization that considers the historical roots and contemporary implications of anti-Black racism, as well as movements that are building towards social equity, and future imaginings. While this certificate addresses local and national contexts, it also situates diasporic and transnational frameworks for understanding Blackness in Canada. As a result, the certificate also examines a comparative approach to meaning-making and belonging in solidarity with other forms of racism and oppression.

The courses that will count towards the Black Canadian Studies Certificate are drawn from the Social Sciences and Humanities, but can complement any degree or discipline, and the certificate will be open to any student in FAS.

The Black Canadian Studies Certificate requires students to take 2.5 FCE from a curated selection of courses. All students will be required to take one foundational course worth 1 FCE: HST265Y: Black Canadian History (which is a new course to be introduced in 2021-2022). Students are also required to take at least 0.5 FCE from a selection of four 3rd-year courses in Canadian Studies, Equity Studies, the English Department, or Women and Gender Studies (list B). Two of these courses have no or limited pre-requisites: CDN335: Black Canadian Studies (none) and WGS390H: Land-ing: Indigenous and Black Futurist Spaces (prereq is 4 FCE). The two other courses have prerequisites, which students will need to take in advance: CSE347H: Critical Race and Anti-Racism Studies (Dei) and ENG356Y: African Canadian Literature (Clarke).

Students are required to take an additional 1.0 FCE, either drawing from the above courses in list B, or another 40-or-so courses from more than 20 units across FAS (see the C list below). Students can also nominate a course not on this list, as long as they can verify that the course deals with Black Canada or Black Canadians to a significant extent (about 35%)—eg a First Year Foundations or Special Topics course.

The mix of optional courses either focus squarely on Black Canadian Studies, or address Black Canadian Studies from a comparative and/or transnational or diasporic perspective. This broader positioning is crucial to understanding national formations, but also for troubling the borders of the state. Here, we situate Canada as part of the Black Atlantic to include diverse conversations of race, belonging and identity formation across the diaspora. Across their courses, students will address local and global perspectives as they better understand social and political institutions, including law, government, and education, while also understanding how social identities are formed and shaped. Drawing from courses that address race and racism across multiple sites and perspectives will encourage students to recognize continuities and discontinuities across Canada and in other contexts.

3 Academic Rationale

- What are the academic reasons for the certificate, and how does it fit with the unit/division’s academic plans?

The Black Canadian Studies Certificate responds to an urgent curricular need in the context of the University’s and A&S’s recent attempts to address anti-Black racism within the institution, and to foster inclusion, diversity and equity. These initiatives have ranged across hiring and retention, student access, and data collection, but they also necessarily require attention to teaching, learning and curricula. The Certificate is an opportunity to augment the University’s initiatives by highlighting the courses that are already on offer that address Black Canadian Studies on St George campus, and thus demonstrating one aspect of the University’s commitment to addressing anti-Black racism. The Certificate is an opportunity to consolidate the research and teaching that faculty have been doing on campus for decades on Black Canadian Studies, but also a recognition of the many new appointments of Black faculty and others who work in this field, and an opportunity to amplify their knowledge and expertise.

Black Canadian Studies is now recognized as an important field of research, as exemplified by the founding of the Black Canadian Studies Association in 2014. The University of Toronto, which has one of the largest undergraduate programs in Canadian Studies in the world, and a deep concentration of research expertise on Canada, should take the lead in promoting this field. We are at an opportune moment, as the growing number of Chairs and programs at Canadian universities underscore. At Dalhousie University there is the James R Johnston Chair in Black Canadian Studies, and a certificate in Black Canadian Studies has been inaugurated at York University. Similar initiatives are underway at Concordia and UBC. (See the article in University Affairs, “The growing field of Black Canadian Studies” August 7, 2019: https://www.universityaffairs.ca/news/news-article/the-growing-field-of-black-canadian-studies/). We see this certificate as an important way to address important student and public demands about curriculum that speaks to Black history and life in Canada.

At the inaugural National Dialogues and Action for Inclusive Higher Education hosted by UTSC in October, 2020, Professor Malinda Smith, Vice-Provost of Equity, Diversity and Inclusion at the University of Calgary, “called on universities to support Black Canadian studies programs” https://thestrand.ca/black-faculty-identify-roots-of-and-potential-solutions-to-institutional-racism-at-uoft/.

The creation of a Black Canadian Studies Certificate is also an opportunity to speak back to Canadian Studies as a field. Canadian Studies as a field, while expanding its focus on race and identity in Canada, has largely ignored conversations of Blackness as part of the Canadian narrative. Canadian Studies, and University College where it is housed, will be the administrative home for the Black Canadian Studies Certificate. Since 2015, the Canadian Studies program has offered one course on Black Canadian Studies (CDN335). The program has also sought to diversify its curriculum offerings by introducing courses on Jewish Canadian Studies, Italian Canadian Studies, and Chinese and Asian Canadian Studies (including a relatively new Minor in Asian Canadian Studies), while students in Canadian Studies are also encouraged to take courses offered through the Indigenous Studies program. Rather than building an additive framework, these courses question the very premise of “Canadian” in Canadian Studies. These courses, together and in conversation with one another, address the multivariate forms of structural and systemic racism, by attending to issues of identity, power, inequity and social justice. They examine racialized and marginalized groups in their cultural, social, economic and political contexts—past and present, but also with an eye to the future—and in relation to one another, while also attending to other markers of social difference (such as ethnicity, nationality, class, gender, sexuality, and ability). It thus makes sense for the Black Canadian Studies Certificate to be housed in the Canadian Studies program at University College as the field and discipline continue to evolve.

Through the consultation process for developing this proposal for a Black Canadian Studies Certificate it has been made clear that there is demand for a self-standing program in Black Studies at UofT, one that would have meaningful tri-campus resonance. We see the creation of the Black Canadian Studies Certificate as one small step towards this bigger project. This certificate, then, considers ways in which collaboration and supports for a Black Studies program can create institutional change and be adopted university-wide. It is further hoped that the Black Canadian Studies Certificate builds more connections between Canadian Studies and other area studies programs, particularly African, Caribbean and Latin American Studies—which are currently some of the most under-resourced programs in FAS.

4 Need and Demand

- Provide a brief description of the projected interest in and demand for the proposed certificate.
- Provide details regarding the anticipated yearly in-take.

The creation of the Black Canadian Studies Certificate responds to student criticism about the paucity of attention to Blackness in their courses, and the concomitant demand for more courses where Blackness is centered. There is also strong interest in ensuring that such courses speak to the particularities of the Canadian context, as is conveyed by this recent article in the Varsity: https://thevarsity.ca/2020/01/12/we-unearth-the-unheard-histories-of-black-canadians-cdn335-returns-to-u-of-t/.

The Certificate will provide visibility for the many courses that are already on offer in the Faculty of Arts and Science that address Black Canadian Studies to a significant degree, which includes courses in units whose FCEs have seen a decrease in recent years, such as HIS and ENG, which the Certificate might help to counteract. If the creation of the Certificate prompts the development of more courses on Black Canadian Studies then that will be of added value.

The Black Canadian Studies Certificate will ensure that Black students are able to find courses that speak to their own histories and experiences, while non-racialized or differently-racialized students will have the opportunity to learn from these critical perspectives. Black students have demanded more courses at UofT that reflect the demographics of our students and of the Greater Toronto Area, which is not only the country’s most diverse region, but also boasts the highest population of Black Canadians.

The Certificate will provide a pathway for students to take courses on Black Canadian Studies and a framework for them to build on their expertise, in complement with their major, minor of specialist programs of study. It also provides additional support to students interested in learning from Black faculty members and provides additional mentorship networks, especially for students considering graduate studies.

We expect that take-up of the Black Canadian Certificate will be small in its first years, but will gain momentum. This is our experience with CDN335: Black Canadian Studies which had small enrolments (under 10 students) in its first few years, but now is at maximum capacity (30 students) in both the Fall and Summer terms. This was also the case with the Minor in Asian Canadian Studies introduced a few years ago in the Canadian Studies program: it started with just 2 students, and now has over 20, while courses in Asian Canadian Studies regularly have waiting lists. We have found that outreach among students is critical, and we will encourage faculty and departments to publicize the Black Canadian Studies Certificate widely, while we will also rely on students to spread the word through student organizations and more informally.

5 Admission Requirements

- Provide the admission requirements for the certificate.

There are no admission requirements. The Black Canadian Studies Certificate is open to all students in the Faculty of Arts and Science.

6 Program Requirements

- This certificate will consist of a coherent sequence of for-credit undergraduate courses related to an identified topic or theme that may complement the degree program.
- Describe the academic requirements of the certificate and mechanism for the assessment of student performance.
- Clarify the certificate program length.
- Is this certificate linked to a particular undergraduate program or degree? Please explain the relationship.

* The new designators for college courses have been used
* When the course was offered in 2020-21, the names of course instructors have been included
* New courses to be introduced in 2021-2022 have been identified (NEW)

(2.5 FCE)

A. Required Course (1.0 FCE)
- HST265Y: Black Canadian History (Aladejebi) (NEW)

B. At least 0.5 FCE required from the following:
- CDN335H: Black Canadian Studies (Hudson)
• CSE347H: Critical Race and Anti-Racism Studies (Dei)
• ENG356Y: African Canadian Literature (Clarke)
• WGS390H: Land-ing: Indigenous and Black Futurist Spaces (Recollet)

C. An additional 1.0 FCE, either from the list of courses in B above, or from any of the following:

AFR150Y: Introduction to African Studies (Levin)
AFR353H: International Relations of Africa (Ahmed)

CAR120Y: Introduction to Caribbean Studies (Newton)
CAR315H: Caribbean Foodways Across History, Culture and Diaspora

WGS450H1: Modernity, Freedom, Citizenship: Gender and the Black Diaspora
WGS463H: Black Diasporic Feminist Intellectual Traditions (Walcott)
WGS480H: Challenging Coloniality: Caribbean Sexualities in Transnational Perspectives
WGS481H1: Gender, Sexuality and Black Liberation from Black Power to #BlackLivesMatter

Students will have the option to nominate an elective course (max 1 FCE) from a course that is not included in this list, as long as it can be verified that there is a significant concentration on Black Canadian Studies in the course (about 35%).

Where applicable, students may also count up to 0.5 FCE from courses at UTM and UTSc towards the Black Canadian Studies certificate, in accordance with the regulations of the Faculty of Arts and Science and those at UTM and UTSc.

7 Consultation

- Outline any consultation undertaken with the Dean and chair/director of the relevant academic units and relevant programs.

To be completed
8 Resources

- Describe any resource requirements including, but not limited to, faculty complement, space, libraries and enrolment/admissions.
- Indicate if the certificate will affect any existing agreements with other institutions, or will require the creation of a new agreement to facilitate the certificate (e.g., Memorandum of Understanding, Memorandum of Agreement, etc). Please consult with the Provost’s office (vp.academicprograms@utoronto.ca) regarding any implications to existing or new agreements.

The Black Canadian Studies Certificate will draw upon existing courses already on offer in the Faculty of Arts and Science. The Black Canadian Studies Certificate will be administered at University College, with existing administrative assistance from the Canadian Studies program. Thus, there will be no new resource requirements for this proposal. This proposal does not affect any existing agreements with other institutions, or the creation of new agreements.

9 Oversight and Accountability: Review

- Category 2 certificates are subject to periodic reviews with the relevant undergraduate program. Please provide details. This will be tracked by the VPAP office.

The Black Canadian Studies Certificate will be reviewed annually for the first five years to gauge student interest and demand. To do so, we will collect data and solicit student interviews. The list of relevant courses will be monitored annually, especially in light of new appointments to UTSG.

CONSISTENTLY - the average gift size is significantly higher among alumni who are engaged both monetarily and non-monetarily
Campaign launch timetable

• Timing: launch in late November / early December
• Target: minimum $1 billion in hand
• Considerations:
  o Momentum: perceived and real
  o Validating pace-setting lead gifts
  o Growth observed across giving and engagement programs
  o Confidence building institutional and volunteer leadership in place
  o Institutional readiness with vision, case, infrastructure, brand, resources
  o Divisional readiness with defined priorities, narratives, talent, pace-setting gifts, and volunteer leadership
Immediate priorities for the new campaign

• Sustain and grow momentum into the University’s 3rd century

• Frame new campaign themes, academic priorities, and major divisional funding aspirations through extensive consultations with principals, deans, and academic leaders

• Encourage academic leaders to bring forward marquee initiatives

• Work with ISIs and marquee initiatives as major platforms for new campaign

• Secure pace-setting, validating gifts to sustain, grow momentum

• Keep donors and volunteers engaged

• Establish both a campaign alumni engagement goal and a revenue goal

• Recruit, retain, develop outstanding advancement talent
Campaign planning and consultation framework
University policies / Provost’s guidelines for advancement

• Robust set of Provost’s Guidelines and University Policies over 25+ years o Gift acceptance
  o Appointment/selection processes o Naming
  o Fund management (whether capital, expendable, or endowment)
  o Advisory bodies
  o Advancement Compensation Policy

• All fundraising done in service to approved academic priorities
  o Fundraising priorities surface from academic planning
  o Fundraising priorities approved by Provost and Vice-President Advancement, at formal request of Principal/Dean o Gift proposals and gift agreements similarly vetted and approved through Provost and VP ADV channels
  o Ensures compliance, academic autonomy, excellence; mitigates against risk
Academic plans and priorities

1. DIVISIONAL ACADEMIC PLANNING: led by Dean/Principal, involving departmental chairs, vice-chairs, directors, and other faculty

2. ACADEMIC FUNDING PRIORITIES: catalogue of needs for faculty support, student support, and other individual priorities

3. PROVOSTIAL APPROVAL: submission to Provost’s office for review and approval

4. VP ADVANCEMENT and PROVOSTIAL APPROVAL: submission of divisional funding priorities to both offices for review and approval; then items 5, 6, 7 can be developed and approved by Provost and VP Adv as indicated in guidelines

5. DIVISIONAL/PROJECT-BASED CASE FOR SUPPORT: vision, special divisional themes, specific needs, relevance, urgency and impact

6. PROPOSALS: development of specific proposals, for individual approved priorities

7. GIFT AGREEMENTS: development of individual gift agreements for approved priorities
Campaign planning and consultation framework

Inputs

• Divisional academic plans and strategic plans
• Multiple rounds of consultations with individual Principals and Deans
• Regular consultations with advancement leaders
• Meetings of P&D Advancement Advisory Group
• Meetings of Pre-Campaign Steering Committee
• Analysis of past, present, and projected data on giving, alumni and donor base
• Analysis of peer-reviewed benchmarking data through GG+A ALF network
Campaign planning and consultation framework

Outputs

• Campaign core narrative for case for support
• Campaign growth trajectories by divisions and by program
• Divisional white papers on case, funding priorities, marquee initiatives
• Academic framework capturing campaign’s broad themes and major priorities
• Matrix of marquee funding priorities, including ISIs
• Governance documents for fall, cycle 1
Campaign core narrative
Feedback on core campaign narrative to date

• Impact of pandemic and launching a campaign in the context of recovery
• Research and teaching excellence—depth and breadth
• U of T as an engaged, caring, inclusive community
• Accessibility as an enduring value
• Three Priorities
• Key focus areas emerging from discussions
• Key institutional strategic initiatives featured in the campaign
Three Priorities resonates broadly

Leverage our urban location more fully, for the mutual benefit of University and City

• Key theme post-pandemic, particularly as importance of community and local connection deepens
• Location will take on more importance in a world with more restrictions on travel and less mobility
• U of T’s role in COVID-19 response and recovery globally, nationally and locally will deepen U of T’s position as a city-building institution

Strengthen and deepen key international partnerships by means of a well-defined strategic focus

• Notwithstanding reductions in mobility, connection with the wider world, and the excellence it enables remains critical to our community and our commitment to academic excellence

Re-imagine and reinvent undergraduate education

• Deepening commitment to a nurturing community balancing a culture of excellence and achievement
• Inverted classroom, digital delivery, other teaching and technological innovations that may open new pathways and opportunities not previously considered
Emerging cross-cutting University-wide themes (selection)

- Accessibility
- Caring, supportive community in which every member may thrive
- Cities
- Critical Digital Humanities
- Data science, big data, analytics, and A.I.
- Entrepreneurship and Innovation
- Equity, Diversity, Inclusivity
- Global Health, Human Health, Public Health
- Indigenous, Black faculty / student education and research initiatives
- Pandemic and post-pandemic impacts
- Student Mental Health and Wellness
- Sustainability and climate change, clean energy
Role of the academic leader in advancement
Role of academic leadership in advancement

- Academic leads define priorities, outline vision, assert relevance and differentiation, ascribe meaning

- Highest success in advancement when academic leaders put forward transformative agendas for change and innovation—visions that convey and extend our capacity for leadership and impact

- Academic leads help clarify and communicate where institution is seeking to build further excellence, leadership, and capacity

- Facilitate consensus on highest academic program priorities, strategy

- Facilitate big idea development that advances core academic strengths and potential

- Advancement leads help identify opportunity, qualify potential, facilitate trusted relationships of caring and involvement, and seek to understand the natural alignments between approved academic priorities and donor sense of mission and cause

- Academic leads and advancement leads partner in how best to tell compelling stories
Partnership model of advancement

- Academic leads working in close collaboration with advancement teams is a hallmark of most successful solicitations and advancement programs.

- Single channel relationships rarely achieve optimal results.

- Partnership thrives when both advancement and academic leads are committed to a long-term relationship-building model of engagement.

- In a partnership model of funding, academic leads work closely with advancement partners in ways that focus and align priorities and mission with opportunities.

- Academic leads often:
  - Participate directly with advancement partner in cultivation, solicitation, and stewardship of major gift donors.
  - Strategize with advancement partner on key messages and alignments with donor’s sense of cause and mission.
  - Participate with advancement partner in discussions on meeting strategies, goals, presentation materials, and timely follow up.
Trinity College Receives $10 Million Landmark Gift to Launch Integrated Sustainability Initiative

Oct 18, 2019

Trinity College of the University of Toronto has received $10 million to support an ambitious initiative designed to integrate sustainability across the College, from an innovative new building to research and classroom opportunities to the creation of food. The donation comes from U of T alumni Brian and Joannah Lawson, and is the largest single donation in Trinity College’s 168-year history.

Ms. Lawson, a nutrition consultant who focuses on prevention of chronic disease through nutritional change at organization and community levels, and Mr. Lawson, Managing Partner and Chief Financial Officer of Brookfield Asset Management, are committed to supporting food systems that promote physical and mental health and are environmentally sustainable.

"There is growing science showing a strong connection between nutrition and physical as well as mental health," said Ms. Lawson. "Nutrient-empty foods also take a heavy toll on the planet. Supporting Trinity students, who go on to be thought-leaders and decision-makers in their chosen fields, with a healthy living environment and an understanding of sustainability practices will have a positive impact on this and future generations."

The Lawsons have also donated generously to U of T’s Joannah & Brian Lawson Centre for Child Nutrition, which supports research, education and policy to improve nutrition in children, families and communities in Canada and globally.

When Trinity College, with its long history of being a green leader on campus, realized it had to add new space to its historic campus, it saw a once-in-a-generation opportunity. Over the past decade, faculty, students, staff and alumni have come together to support innovative sustainability projects including a rooftop garden at St.
Thank you!
